DIGITALLY-PRINTED FLAGS

flagandbanner.com/digital

Made in USA!

Included: Canvas Heading and grommets with reinforced fly end.

Add-ons: Pole Hem- $10 per ft.
Liner- $5 per sq. ft.
Fringe -$6 per ft.

Learn the parts of a flag at flagandbanner.com/glossary

Definition:

'Single Reverse' OR 'Double-Sided'

'Single Reverse' – The flag is dyed all the way through, so the image is on both sides, appearing in reverse on the back side. (See example on right). Most flags are made this way.

'Double-Sided' – Two flags are sewn back-to-back with a liner in between. This method, of course, doubles the price of the flag, makes it twice as heavy, and requires a strong wind to lift, wave, and flutter. (Good for windy areas)

PRESENTATION POLE

 flagandbanner.com/gonfalon-kits

Definition: 'Dye Sublimation'

This popular technique is printed on fabric material using a dye-sublimation heat transfer process. Your design is first computer printed on paper then heat transferred onto the banner. This method of imprinting allows for bright colors and high resolution of graphics. Single sided or double sided (single reverse not available). What's single reverse? See page 4 for the definition.

Banner Considerations

Before deciding on your banner size, consider your flagpole setup. Typically, the bigger the room, the taller the pole. You want your display to look regal and elegant. Using a smaller flagpole in a big room, makes your display look inadequate. However, using a flagpole that is too tall for a small room looks disjointed. To get an idea of how your display will look, experiment with people and objects of varying heights. Stand at the back of your venue and observe how they look.

Once you have determined your pole height, it's time to think about your banner size and shape.

Pick your banner size from our recommended flag sizes:

- 2 ft. x 3 ft. flag with the 6 ft. and 7 ft. pole
- 2 ft. x 4 ft to 3 ft. x 5 ft. with the 7 ft. and 8 ft. pole
- 4 ft. x 6 ft. flag with the 9 ft. or 12 ft. pole
- Or create your own size!

VECTOR line-based files –$28

Vector art is usually associated with drawing programs like Adobe Illustrator. Scalable Vector Graphics (SVG) and Encapsulated Post Script (EPS) files are preferred. In a vector file, each image consists of various shapes, points, and connecting lines. Vector art does not have size limitations which is what makes this type of file the best for us to use. All fonts must be outlined or converted to curves. If this cannot be accomplished, then the font must be included with the art in True type or Open Type format.

Vector line-based files can be reproduced clearly at any size. Vector art is usually associated with drawing programs like Adobe Illustrator. Scalable Vector Graphics (.SVG) and Encapsulated Post Script (.EPS) files are preferred.

RASTER pixel-based files –$75 to $250

Raster art digital art composed of horizontal and vertical rows of pixels. It is usually associated with pixel-based programs like Adobe Photoshop. Limited usage, but manageable! Each image is made of screen pixels (like the images on websites, digital camera photos, or scanned images). These pixels make the file huge and when the file is enlarged, the pixels get larger and—unfortunately—easier to see. The proper pixels per inch (PPI or DPI) is required to prevent a jagged look in the final output:

Files must be set to the finished size and 100ppi or dpi (pixels/dots per inch) for optimal results.
Files larger than 100ppi or 10MB file size are encouraged and acceptable.

For Example:
